15 KILLED AS MILK TRAIN SPEEDS THROUGH LIGHT, CRASHES EXPRESS

Blame Engineer of Former Train for Failure to Observe Sign

MANY BADLY HURT

Victims Are Crushed in Wooden Coach

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 6.—H. Martin King, engineer of the Erie milk train which crashed into the rear end of the Erie eastbound flier last night killing 15 persons and injuring 23, admitted today that he had not set his brakes before the crash occurred.

It all happened so fast that he did not have a chance to do so, King said.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 6. Failure of the engineer of an Erie railroad milk train to see danger signals today was blamed for a rear-end collision between his train and the crack Atlantic Express of the road, in which 15 persons were killed and at least 25 seriously injured.

The limited, bound from Chicago to Jersey City and carrying many homeward bound visitors to the World's Fair, had just pulled out of the local station and slowed down for a danger signal when the milk train, eastward bound, crashed into the rear end of the passenger.

Most of those killed were in a wooden coach in the middle of the train. The locomotive of the milk train, smashing into a steel coach on the rear of the limited, telescoped another steel coach into the wooden car, smashing it like an eggshell.

Seats of the wooden coach were rammed into one end of the car, carrying men, women and children in a horrible crush and smashing them to the floor, against the coach walls and ceiling.

The nose of the milk train knifed its way eight feet into the rear car of the passenger train.

WRECKAGE TANGLED Shock of the impact threw the three last cars of the passenger train off the tracks and piled high a tangled mass of wreckage and humanity.

As screams of the injured and dying broke through the night, trainmen and passengers dashed for the Binghamton state hospital, close to the scene to summon aid.

Every available doctor, nurse and ambulance from Binghamton, Johnson City, Endicott and nearby towns hurried to the wreck. Police and firemen, augmented by state troopers and a company of National guardsmen hurried to the scene and immediately began the work of extricating the bodies from the mass of tangled steel and wood.

Meantime, railroad officials hastily began a preliminary investigation into cause of the crash.

Engineer G. O. Grantier, of Hornell, piloting the limited, said the train was half a minute late leaving the Binghamton station last night.

CROP COMMITTEE BEING PLANNED

Second Series of Wheat Meetings Studied; Interest In County High.

Starting Tuesday, Sept. 12 a second series of meetings will be held in the county. These meetings are held for two purposes: first, to more fully acquaint wheat growers with the details of acreage reduction and second, to elect a county Wheat Board and Township Committee.

All of the wheat producers signing applications by the time the second meeting is held will be eligible to vote for these officers. Each township will elect one member to the County Board of Directors and two additional members to the Community Committee, so that there will be a County Board composed of 14 members elected by the wheat producers and in each township there will be three committeemen elected by the producers. This does not mean that the wheat growers will be ineligible to join the organization after the township meeting, however, only those joining by that time will be eligible to vote on the officers.

It will be one of the duties of the Community Committee to assist wheat growers in filling out the application for membership, so that there will be ample opportunity for wheat producers to sign applications after the township meeting.

TEXAS STORM FATAL TO 53; CITIES RUINED

Rio Grande Valley in Waste With Relief Needed at Once

TOWNS NEED FOOD

Rescue Parties to Penetrate Other Areas

HARLINGEN, Tex., Sept. 6.—Relief parties penetrating the lower Rio Grande valley, scene of a devastating tropical hurricane, today reported that 53 persons were known to have been killed in the three cities left virtually in ruins. Sixteen hundred persons were suffering from injuries.

Survivors in the cities of Brownsville, Sae Benito and Harlingen groped their way through water-filled streets in which floated the wreckage of residences and business buildings torn from their foundations by the hurricane.

LOSS IS GREAT

Property damage throughout the storm area, estimated to be 50 miles square, was appalling. Buildings were battered to pieces. Streets were flooded to a depth of six feet. The citrus fruit crop in the fertile valley was virtually destroyed the loss being estimated at $5,000,000.

Communication lines were still down and flooded streets and roads limited surveys of the storm area damage. Scattered reports told of bodies lying beside the highways.

Rescue parties were attempting to penetrate into the interior communities, but were hindered by flooded roads. Five relief trains headed for the hurricane area today bearing medical assistance and much-needed food supplies from Laredo San Antonio, Kingsville and Corpus Christi.

The injured here were sent to improvised hospitals organized by a staff of surgeons and nurses who arrived from Kingsville.

30 IN BUILDING

The wreckage of one building that collapsed here in the 95-mile-an-hour gale revealed that 30 persons had died within its walls. Buildings in the business district here were blasted away by the gale. A majority of the residences were unroofed or totally destroyed. Six feet of water stood in the streets and rescue parties worked through the night with only sputtering candles to guide them.

VERMONT, TOO VOTES REPEAL

State Dry For 75 Years Casts Two to One Margin Against Dry Laws.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 6.—The rolling stone of national wet sentiment swept the prohibition moss of three-quarters of a century from the Green mountains, and today Vermont stood as the 25th consecutive state demanding repeal of the 18th amendment.

Vermont, considered by many as one of the most arid states in the country, rolled up a two-to-one majority for repeal, electing twelve wet and two dry delegates to the state constitutional convention to be held here Sept. 18. Voting was extremely light.

Final figures from the 248 cities and towns of the state showed for repeal, 41,279, against repeal 20,572.

Vermont became the fifth of the six New England states to join the "big parade" of wet states. Maine holds its election for delegates to a constitutional convention Monday.

Vermont was one of the pioneer prohibition states. For fifty years before 1902 Vermont had a prohibition statute on its law books. In 1914, in changing a local option law, the Green mountain state voted then to one for prohibition.

However, even in the event of national repeal before the end of the year, it will probably not be until 1935 before Vermonters may purchase, legally, anything stronger than 3.2. A law passed by the last legislature provides new statutes must be enacted before anything stronger can be sold in the state. The next legislature

Circleville Oils Win 'Rec' League Title, 15-1

Defeat Walisa's In Hectic Battle

The Circleville Oils, underdogs in the play-off series with the Walisa Sluggers, are the 1933 champions of the city recreation league. They defeated the Sluggers in a wild encounter Tuesday evening by a 15-1 score.

As soon as the game was ended Dorthy Courtright, manager of the Oils and the man responsible for the city having recreation ball this year, announced that the game was the last regular contest of the year. The lease for the use of the field from the Pennsylvania railroad has expired. Later in the evening Courtright took down the score-board, removed the bases and planned to take down the fence and back-stop Wednesday.

To say the game was a wild affair is putting it mildly. The Oils started the ball rolling in their half of the first inning. The Oil batting order was given a good shaking up with Watson taking the lead-off berth. He singled and so did Steele. Geib advanced both men with a ground ball but Carter, who took Merriman's place at short when the regular was late, missed a third strike. With two out and two on Mettler coaxed a base on balls from Raymond Smith, sent to the mound by Roy Walisa.

On how many bases should be allowed but the circuit stood. With splendid support especially in the outfield, Purcell went through scoreless inning after scoreless inning. The Sluggers finally pushed a runner over the plate in the seventh. Walisa's team put two men on base in each of the first five innings but in practically every instance a pop fly with Mettler taking most of them was the result of the next batter's efforts.

Eddie Watson, Oil center fielder, committed grand larceny in the fifth inning. With two out Trimmer and Callahan both singled. Emerson Beatty caught hold of one of Purcell's tosses and drove it far into right center field. Watson turned his back to the plate and running towards the automobiles gathered the ball in for one of the finest catches seen this season.

After scoring four runs in the first inning the Oils went scoreless until the sixth when they counted two more. Merriman and Mettler were out when Purcell, Robinson and Parks connected for consecutive hits and with the aid of two errors, one by Brungs and one by Hickey, counted two markers.

NINE IN SEVENTH

Then came the most hectic inning of the season. Darkness was beginning to fall and with the Sluggers getting their last bat Oil batters were ordered to swing at the first good ball. They did with the result that hits peppered all over the lot. Watson drove a ball through Brungs and Steele singled. Geib tripled over Beatty's head in right field and Merriman, Mettler, Purcell and Robinson connected for consecutive hits. The Sluggers had given up the ghost by this time and were tossing the ball around in every direction. Finally, after nine runs had scored, the side was retired.

The Sluggers kept pecking away in the seventh to score their only run. Art Beatty singled and Stevens popped out. Ike Brungs had left the field during the terrible early part of the inning but instead of using a batter in his place the batting order was moved up one notch. Trimmer grounded out but Callahan singled to Merriman.

GOES FOR CIRCUIT

Carl Purcell then cracked a hard drive back at Smith, the ball hitting the pitcher on the shins and bouncing into Corwin-st. All runners scored and so did Purcell. Considerable argument was made man scoring Beatty. Heeter took B. Beatty's long fly to end the game and the season's schedule.

FIELDERS STAR

Watson and Purcell each scored three hits for the Oils with Art Beatty getting three for the losers. Boyce Parks played his best game of the year in the field for the Oils and so did Watson and Heeter. Mettler was the busiest man in the Oil infield handling all his numerous chances with ease.

Ab Reid and Max Friedman officiated.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengue (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengue by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

8,000 WATCH SPARTAN '11' IN WORK-OUT

Several New Men Expected To Gain Berths; Schaake Sends Post.

CADDELL THERE TOO

Larry Bettencourt To Be Candidate For 11.

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 6.—A crowd of 8000 Spartan fans assembled at Universal Stadium Monday night to greet Patsy Clark and the 1933 Spartans. After two hours of grueling practice, the Spartan mentor called it a day and the members of the "purple herd" wearily trekked their way homeward for a well-earned night's rest.

Thirty-three candidates faced the Spartan coach at the initial practice, among whom fourteen were veterans, the remaining candidates receiving their first baptism of fire in the pro ranks. These of last year's squad who again reported for practice are Lumpkin of Georgia Tech, Presnell of Nebraska, Savosie of Butler, Gutowsky of Oklahoma City U. Randolph of Indiana U., Emerson of Texas U., Wilson of Texas A & M, Wager of Carthage, Mitchell of Davis-elkins, Bodenger of Tulane, Alford of Texas Tech, Christensen of Oregon U., Ebding of St. Mary's, and Armstrong of Missouri. Most of these veterans reported early and have been working out daily during the past week.

Among the new candidates are such outstanding stars as Caddell of Stanford, Schneller of Wisconsin, Elser of Buffalo, Hunter of Marshall, Boyd of Westminster and Burleson of Southern Methodist. Several additional candidates who have found it impossible to answer the initial call will report during the next forty-eight hours, among whom are Schaake, the famous quarterback of Kansas U., Tedesco of Utah, Bettencourt of St. Mary's, Christensen and Johnson of Utah. The Spartans will work out twice daily in preparation for their first game with the Indianapolis Indians on September 13. The first League game will be at Universal stadium with the Cincinnati Reds as opponents on September 17.

I've Often Wondered

By PAT J. KIRWIN

WHERE and how President Roosevelt conceived the slogan, "New Deal?" This two-word expression is known throughout the world and nearly every American school-boy, no matter how small, could advance his opinion about it. Several days ago I wrote the President and asked him about the origin of this slogan, "New Deal."

Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President, sends the following communication from Poughkeepsie, N. Y.:

"I have asked the President where and how the slogan "The New Deal" was conceived and he asks me to tell you that no particular date can be assigned but that the term was used by the President and his friends on many occasions before he was nominated in Chicago."

Sincerely yours,
STEPHEN EARLY
Asst. Secretary to the President

Some time ago I was told that the slogan "New Deal" was conceived as follows: One evening after Pres. Roosevelt had received the nomination at Chicago, he and his wife were at their Hyde Park, N. Y. home attempting to devise a phrase or slogan to be used during the campaign. While playing bridge, Mrs. Roosevelt, apparently embarrassed with a poor hand, suddenly exclaimed, "Let's have a new deal." And there was born this famous slogan "New Deal" which helped elect the President and which he is attempting to give us now.

However, Mr. Early's communication dispels this explanation and we will be forced to accept the President's word . . . and surely he should know.

LANGE DECLINES

NEW CONCORD, Sept. 6.—William F. Lange, athletic coach at Muskingum college here, has declined an offer to take a similar post at Kent State College, he announced here today.

One of Lange's reasons for declining the offer was inability to agree upon a contract, he said.

Lange, who has held the post at Muskingum college for 10 years, was offered the berth at Kent State after it had been declined by Dick Larkins, freshman coach at Ohio State University.

"Ann is going to get MARRIED!"

"Yes! She's engaged to a nice boy. He's not making a big salary yet, but he's a hard worker. They'll have to be careful of their money, at first!"

Careful of their money! With a home to find, furniture to buy, marketing to learn . . . with the thousand and one little emergencies to meet that newlyweds never dream of! . . .

And a young girl, inexperienced in these practical problems, is expected to be careful of her money!

Ann will bless advertising. In the pages of this newspaper she will find the very experience she lacks—the advice she needs!

It is when every penny counts that advertising gives its best service. The advertisements you read are valuable lessons in everyday economy. They help, as nothing else can, to make your dollar go the longest distance. For advertisements show you which article, at the price you are willing to pay, is going to suit you best. And the very fact that it is advertised is its guarantee that it will give you satisfaction after you have bought it.

The advertisements in this newspaper are a most valuable guide to wise buying. It pays to read them regularly.

COMMUNISTS ACT IN CUBAN GOVERNMENT

Revolutionary Junta Holds
Its First Meeting This Morning.

SHIPS IN HARBOR

Report Soviet Actively Directing Plans.

HAVANA, Sept. 6.—Cuba's revolutionary junta of youth and radicalism held its first formal session at the presidential palace today, while its rule over the island republic, outwardly appearing complete, had several strange phases shrouded in mystery.

While the leaders of the military revolt boasted complete control of troops throughout Cuba, reliable reports from Caniaguey, Santa Clara, and Guantanamo provinces said soldiers there were ignorant of the governmental change in Havana.

In the matter of politics the situation was equally unclear.
Rumors persisted that paid Soviet agents had been prominent in the revolt and that they were working feverishly to place Cuba in the hands of Communists.

The position of such noted political leaders, all foes of the recently deposed Gerardo Machado, as Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, Carlos Mendieta, head of the Nationalist party, and former President Mario G. Menocal remained unknown.

QUESTIONS UNANSWERED

The junta, or commission, met early this morning in a session at which Gomez and Menietta were received together. After a long discussion they left, smiling and apparently in good humor, but absolutely refusing to make any comment. Shrug: greeted all questions regarding their support of the new movement.

In addition the attitude of the United States, perhaps the greatest single factor in importance to the revolt leaders, also remained unstable.

The American destroyer Mac-Farland lay at anchor in Havana

tiago. Two other American war-

LOCAL GIRL WRITES OF CUBAN TROUBLE

The following interesting article was written by Miss Ethel Jane Steele, Tampa, Fla., attorney, a former Circleville girl and daughter of Mrs. Jennie Steele, S. Court-st.

The name of Roosevelt is mentioned in Cuba today with the reverence that one mentions the name of God. From the lips of every loyal Cuban you hear "Teddy Roosevelt gave us our flag and Franklin Roosevelt saved our constitution." As I write this article there are thousands of people in the streets celebrating the return from exile of hundreds of citizens who were forced to leave the country during the Machado regime.
They are carrying banners with these words "Viva Wells, Amigo de Cuba" (Long life Wells, friend of Cuba).

During these days of revolution
I have seen sights that I can only hope that some day time will erase from my memory, seeing people shot down on the streets their bodies torn to pieces is a common sight. The hotel where I am staying is located almost across the street from the Capitol Building and on the prodo where the streets have been running in blood for more than three weeks. Cuba has been in the throws of a region of terror for three years prior to the revolution. During which time more than a thousand cold blooded murders have been laid at the feet
of Machado and his henchmen,
over four hundred of these have

route to Cuban waters.
All were dispatched by Washington "to protect American lives and property," but the question uppermost in the minds of most Cubans was that of American intervention. Fear of this, bitterly opposed by Cubans of all factions,
was regarded as highly responsible for the unusual order which prevailed throughout the revolution and into the early hours of its rule.

REPORT DISORDER

Despite this fear of intervention, however, there were frequent reports of minor disorders. It was reported one soldier was killed and two others wounded near downtown Havana early this morning by unknown persons who fired a machine-gun volley from a speeding automobile. Similar reports came from the suburbs and nearby provinces.

been University students, the sons

BEGAN WITH STRIKE

It was on the 5th of this month
when the first Omnibus drivers went on a strike. Little did the people know how long this had been planned or how far reaching it would be. But hour by hour other industries joined the strike, until within five days the whole island had joined what was the world's greatest strike. From the highest industry to the housewife of the most humble laborer, everything stood still and everyone stopped work. The bakeries, the groceries, the dairymen the ice companies all restaurants and hotels, and things looked dark indeed. The manager of our hotel fortunately had some supplies on hand and he cooked the meals himself for the few people who were in the hotel.

Some six days after all business places had closed word went out that Machado had resigned. One of the most tragic things during that time was the fact that there were no newspapers printed, the mail carriers did not deliver any mail and the telephone employees were in the strike, some few people here have radios and this was the only way in which any information was given out. So the city of Havana ran rampant with rumors, no one knew just what was going on and each person had his own ideas and assumptions, it was impossible to rely upon anything you heard. As soon as the rumor spread that Machado had resigned thousands of people rushed into the streets singing and dancing and when the chief of police ordered them to go home they failed to obey. We heard the siren of the police cars, some ten or fifteen loaded with machine guns, and in front of the hotel they started firing into the crowd of men, women and children. Sixty people were killed outright and more than two hundred wounded. The screams and moans of these people and the streets literally running in human blood presented a picture too gruesome to tell in words. But those who died that night did not die in vain, for it was this demonstration that delt
the final blow and the army deserted Machado and forced him to flee the country.

CITY STARK MAD

If you can visualize a city with a hundred thousand people gone stark mad you can have some idea of the scenes that followed immediately after the government was overthrown. It is only natural that these people who have suffered for three years and whose sons and fathers have been murdered would start out to seek vengeance upon all who were responsible for their suffering. During the demonstrations I saw as many as ten bodies at a time being carried or kicked through the main streets. It is not an uncommon occurrence yet to hear a noise and look out the window and see at least one body lying in the street.
One Cuban, a prominent member of the ABC party told me this morning that they had about nine hundred more to kill and then they would be satisfied. The homes and properties of every member of Machado's Cabinet and all of his prominent supporters have been completely wrecked.

Each time the citizens uncover another crime committed by Machado's secret police riots break out anew. For instance I attended the funeral of the four boys, members of fine families here, whose bodies were discovered in an old forte used as a prison. They had been tortured and then killed. No sooner had their graves been covered than the mobs started out to find the prison keeper and all his guards. They have killed several of them now and the others will be killed unless they escape the country. There is no such thing as a trial or courts of justice here
now, the people have taken the law
into their own hands.

Naturally there is a lawless element here who are taking advantage of the situation and many people have been killed in the past week and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed because of personal grievances.

BOOSTED OF ACTS

One day this week I had to go over to the Italian Legation office on business, I picked a nice looking driver who could speak a little English and who was very courteous to drive me over. When we got about two blocks from the hotel he boasted to me that he had killed five men, traitors to the government, and insisted upon taking me past to show me how he did it. I did not dare refuse lest he think I was a friend of Machado's. In spite of the horrible experience I had to smile and tell him what a brave man I thought him to be.

When I reached the office a woman came in screaming and told the Italian Council that her husband had been killed and her home burned. No one in the office paid the slightest attention to her.
It seemed so heartless. She told me that she once lived in Boston, Mass., but had been in Cuba about five years. Later I learned that her husband was a member of a secret Italian organization who had executed many of Machado's orders, and that he was accused of killing five people.

One night an American vessels landed and the Captain asked me to come aboard and spend the night with him and his wife. I was happy to get away from the hotel and howling mobs on the outside and to get some decent food. About twelve o'clock we heard an awful noise outside and about twelve people, some of them prominent in the Machado regime tried to come aboard the boat. The captain refused but just when things looked darkest a cutter came around our boat and picked them up and took them out to the end of the bay where they got a boat for New York the next morning. But they no sooner left the pier than the mob arrived and demanded that we surrender them. This was the only time I was afraid of my life. I did not think they would dare fire on an American vessel, but they would have dared do anything. But the captain finally convinced them that he had not seen them and they went away. It is useless to say that we did not sleep any that night.

During these days when life seems to mean nothing and when half of the homes of Havana are draped in mourning I have learned to love the Cuban people. I am a stranger here with only sufficient knowledge of their language to get by, yet they have protected my life with their own, have guarded my every step. When food was scarce and they did not know where or when they would get more, they have divided, their homes and their hearts have been open. And I shall leave Cuba feeling that I am leaving behind many warm friendships, and many friends whom I shall never forget.

LAUDS REPORTERS

Too higher compliment cannot be paid the boys who represent the different newspapers in the States who are here. Life would have been almost unbearable without them. Their good humor and their ability to see the humorous side of any situation helped to make the days a little brighter.

Since leaving Circleville I have had quite a desire to travel in the tropics and to see different islands and their people, but after living through the experiences of the past few days, I am firmly convinced that once I get back to Circleville and my people the largest body of water I ever want to see is the Scioto River and I shall be content to take all my future voyages on a sail boat up the river.

Questions and Answers

Are frozen foods harmful? I am referring to those frozen in an automatic refrigerator for prolonged periods of keeping.

Freezing reduces the bacterial decomposition of foods so that spoilage is eliminated. In defrosting frozen foods it is unwise to allow them to remain exposed to the air until completely thawed. Meats, fish and such foods should be placed in the frying pan, roaster or broiler before any thawing takes place. Cooking should begin before the ice has disappeared. This prevents softness and preserves the flavor. Fruits to be served hot should be heated quickly without a thawing period.

I have heard of a mixture using vinegar and flour as a good substitute for sour milk. In what proportions are they used?

For 1 C. sour milk use 1 1/2 Tbsp. strong vinegar, 1/3 C. flour and 3/4 C. warm water.

Is the sweetness of granulated sugar, brown sugar and powdered sugar equivalent? Can they be substituted interchangeably?

When using brown sugar in place of granulated sugar, use 1 1/3 C. of brown sugar if 1 C. of granulated is required. Use 1 1/2 C. of confectioners' sugar for 1 C. of granulated.

Does it make any difference whether or not cracker crumbs are used for bread crumbs in a baked casserole dish?

Use less cracker crumbs than bread crumbs required in the recipe if you are altering it. Three-quarters of a cup of cracker crumbs will extend a scalloped dish and absorb liquids as much as 1 cup of bread crumbs.

Late Summer Salads

Cool nourishing foods for the lazy days of late summer and plenty of milk in the diet are challenges to your ability. Meet both of those with small time and money cost with the use of cottage cheese. A salad made with cheese and fruit is delicious when frozen.

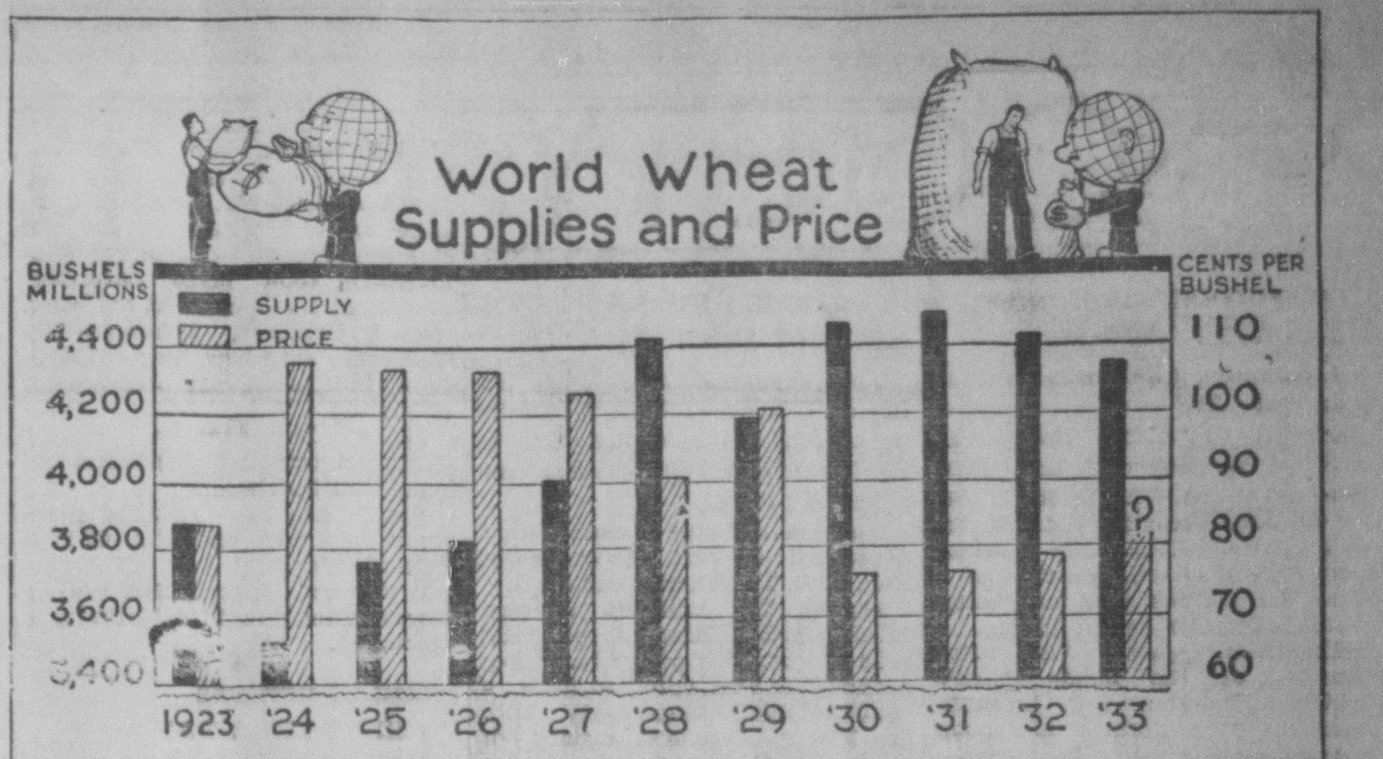

Frozen Cheese and Fruit 1/4 C. canned grated pineapple 1 Tbsp. sugar 1/2 medium banana 2 tsp. lemon juice 2 C. mixed fruit 1/2 C. salt 1/2 C. mayonnaise (pears, peaches, apricots, cherries) 1 C. cottage cheese

Prepare fruit by draining juice before measuring. Add lemon, sugar and salt and let stand 30 minutes. Rub cottage cheese through sieve and add with the mayonnaise to fruit. Freeze until firm.

Another salad using cheese is one made with a pineapple ring covered with a thick slice of tomato. Add a topping of cottage cheese to which mayonnaise has been added to taste. Served on crisp lettuce, the combination is delicious. For garnishing, if you choose, a strip of green pepper is attractive.

Cottage Cheese Dressing

Cottage cheese dressing may be used on a crisp section of head lettuce, with a grapefruit salad or chilled cucumber slices. Rub 1 C. cottage cheese through sieve, add 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. sugar, 2 Tbsp. lemon juice, and mix well. Add 2 Tbsp. salad oil slowly until well blended.

THIS representation of what the world will offer the wheat farmer for his wheat shows clearly the relationship between supply and price. Since 1928, when the world supplies of wheat first became burdensome the price has been low for the most part. The pictures at the top of the chart show that when the supply is low, the world will pay a good price for wheat, but when supplies are too big, the world won't pay as much. As the supplies (shown by the black bars) have climbed, the price (represented by the shaded parts) has sunk lower. The wheat administration seeks to bring the wheat supply of the United States into line with demand by reducing acreage, and thus to make the price nearer parity, that is, the point at which the return from a bushel of wheat will buy as much as it did in the pre-war period, 1909-1914. The 1933 crop year is not far enough advanced to show definitely what prices will be.

GOLD HAS BIG ROLE IN AFFAIRS OF MAN

Used as Money It Sways Destinies of Nations.

Washington.—The intricate part that gold has played in the affairs of civilization, and something of the romance that clings to the yellow metal, are disclosed by Frederick Simplich in a communication to the National Geographic society.

"When gold was used merely as a personal adornment, in plate, or in the decorative arts," he writes, "it swayed the destinies only of those who possessed it, as in Peru and Mexico, or when Rome paid chariot loads of it to the barbarians to save herself from being sacked. But when gold came into wide use as money, to measure wages, prices, and the cost of living in all nations, then it began to influence the whole world. Tariffs, the gold standard, foreign exchange and debts, arbitrage—gold brings them all into the picture of international relations.

De Pinedo Exiled for Love?

Once hailed as the "Lindbergh of Italy," Marquis Francesco de Pinedo killed when his trans-Atlantic plane crashed at New York, died in exile. The Italian nobleman fieri is said to have aroused the ire of Victor Emmanuel by his attentions to the monarch's third daughter, Princess Giovanna, now Queen of Bulgaria. Differences with his chief, General Italo Balbo, were the direct cause of de Pinedo's retirement as chief of staff of the Italian Air Service and his assignment to Buenos Aires as air attaché of the Italian Embassy there. De Pinedo's friends accuse Balbo of having been jealous of the ill-fated airman's popularity.

night. As he neared the yard limit, he said, he saw the signals set against him and pulled the train to a stop and flagman R. C. Morris, of Hornell, ran back and placed warning torpedoes on the track.

Railroad men also said stopping of the limited should have set in action a warning signal light of the automatic signal system further west, the direction from which the milk train came.

SIGNALS UNOBSERVED

M. H. King, of Elmira, engineer of the milk train, said he did not see the warning signal nor hear the torpedoes and other members of the train crew, including Conductor D. A. Shea, of Hornell, also stated they had not seen the signals.

The limited had been standing only about a minute when the milk train plowed into it.

Ambulances worked swiftly taking the injured to local hospitals. Firemen, police and National guardsmen, working frantically with axes, crowbars and saws, liberated scores of passengers jammed in the rear coaches and blocked by wreckage of the wooden car. The injured were hurried to a baggage car at the head of the train where doctors and nurses set up an improvised hospital to render aid.

As soon as the bodies of the dead and injured had been removed, wrecking crews began the task of clearing the main line, on which the passenger train had been traveling. Both the wrecking crews and rescue parties were hampered by thousands of spectators who raced to the scene, just outside the city limits, and by passengers who were unharmed but who refused to leave the site rather than remain uncertain of the fate of friends or relatives.

Both local and railroad officials early today set in motion machinery for a complete investigation of the wreck.

District Attorney Frank L. Wooten said he would decide on a course of action as soon as he gets a report from Coroner Frank J. Hitchcock, Sheriff C. W. Kress and local police. Officials of the railroad said an investigation would be ordered at once.

Twelve of the 15 dead were killed instantly, doctors said, when the wooden car was telescoped, and the others died on the way to hospitals. In the wreckage, the body of a child about 3 was found wedged between two older persons. One woman was hurled nearly 50 feet from the train and a man was decapitated when the steel coach crashed the wooden car.

The wooden car was three cars behind the engine of the limited and behind it was a steel coach and two sleeping cars. Most of those killed and the seriously injured were from Susquehanna, Pa., where the wooden coach was to have been detached. Several of them were commuters, local officials of the railroad said, while others were believed to be returning from Chicago as were a number of passengers from New York City and nearby points who had been on a Labor Day excursion to the Century of Progress exposition.

gate on the committee to draw up the code and pledged him to work for a code which will be fair to the producer and distributor. One farmer pointed out that although the price of milk was raised from seven to nine cents per quart last Friday, the distributor has failed to raise the producer's profit. "We don't want the distributor to have all the profit," one producer asserted.

The producers expect to have a meeting of their own after the code has been completed. Provision of the code will be discussed and probably rejected if no satisfactory to them. When local dairymen are unable to agree on a voluntary code within a specified time the state milk commission has the power to formulate the code.

Members of the local committee will meet soon to draw up the code after which it will be presented to a meeting of distributors and producers for approval.

Mr. Walters said he expected to have another meeting next week and have a member of the Columbus code committee speak.

15 KILLED AS MILK TRAIN SPEEDS THROUGH LIGHT, CRASHES EXPRESS

Blame Engineer of Former Train for Failure to Observe Sign

MANY BADLY HURT

Victims Are Crushed in Wooden Coach

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 6.—H. Martin King, engineer of the Erie milk train which crashed into the rear end of the Erie eastbound flier last night killing 15 persons and injuring 25, admitted today that he had not set his brakes before the crash occurred.

It all happened so fast that he did not have a chance to do so, King said.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 6. Failure of the engineer of an Erie railroad milk train to see danger signals today was blamed for a rear-end collision between his train and the crack Atlantic Express of the road, in which 15 persons were killed and at least 25 seriously injured.

The limited, bound from Chicago to Jersey City and carrying many homebound visitors to the World's Fair, had just pulled out of the local station and slowed down for a danger signal when the milk train, eastward bound, crashed into the rear end of the passenger.

Most of those killed were in a wooden coach in the middle of the train.

The locomotive of the milk train, smashing into a steel coach on the rear of the limited, telescoped another steel coach into the wooden car, smashing it like an eggshell.

Seats of the wooden coach were rammed into one end of the car, carrying men, women and children in a horrible crush and smashing them to the floor, against the coach walls and ceiling.

The nose of the milk train knifed its way eight feet into the rear car of the passenger train.

WRECKAGE TANGLED

Shook of the impact threw the three last cars of the passenger train off the tracks and piled high a tangled mass of wreckage and humanity.

As screams of the injured and dying broke through the night, trainmen and passengers dashed for the Binghamton state hospital, close to the scene to summon aid.

Every available doctor, nurse and ambulance from Binghamton, Johnson City, Endicott and nearby towns hurried to the wreck. Police and firemen, augmented by state troopers and a company of National guardsmen hurried to the scene and immediately began the work of extricating the bodies from the mass of tangled steel and wood.

Meantime, railroad officials hastily began a preliminary investigation into cause of the crash.

Engineer G. O. Grantier, of Hornell, piloting the limited, said the train was half a minute late leaving the Binghamton station last night.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, returned to the capital last night and reported to Mr. Roosevelt this morning he has had no word from the Detroit manufacturer.

The consideration of the Ford case will be a part of the general survey of the NRA situation, which will include also the recalcitrance of the coal operators.

Gen. Johnson told the president today he had no word whatever from Ford or his representatives, and was as much in the dark as anyone else as to whether the Detroit independent was going to "come in" or "stay out."

Accumulating, Ford becomes liable to $500 fine for every day he remains outside the wings of the Blue Eagle.

HAVANA, Sept. 6.—American residents of Havana took refuge in the National hotel and prepared for partial evacuation of the island republic today as disorganization and uncertainty followed Cuba's latest revolutionary coup d'etat.

In an atmosphere of apprehension and tension, knots of Americans gathered in the lobby of the hotel, from whose windows the American destroyer MacFarland, one of four warships sent to Cuba by President Roosevelt, was visible.

Pan-American Airways planes leaving Havana were booked to capacity by tourists and visitors fearful the new revolutionary junta would be unable to maintain order.

CROP COMMITTEE BEING PLANNED

Second Series of Wheat Meetings Studied; Interest in County High.

Interest in the wheat acreage adjustment is rapidly crystallizing in the county. By the end of this week meetings will have been held in all townships.

Starting Tuesday, Sept. 12 a second series of meetings will be held in the county. These meetings are held for two purposes: first, to more fully acquaint wheat growers with the details of acreage reduction and second, to elect a county Wheat Board and Township Committees.

All of the wheat producers signing applications by the time the second meeting is held will be eligible to vote for these officers. Each township will elect one member to the County Board of Directors and two additional members to the Community Committee, so that there will be a County Board composed of 14 members elected by the wheat producers in each township there will be three committees elected by the producers. This does not mean that the wheat growers will be ineligible to join the organization after the township meeting, however, only those joining by that time will be eligible to vote on the officers.

It will be one of the duties of the Community Committee to assist wheat growers in filling out the application for membership, so that there will be ample opportunity for wheat producers to sign applications after the township meeting.

TEXAS STORM FATAL TO 53; CITIES RUINED

Rio Grande Valley in Waste With Relief Needed at Once

Rescue Parties to Penetrate Other Areas

HARLINGEN, Tex., Sept. 6.—Relief parties penetrating the lower Rio Grande valley, scene of a devastating tropical hurricane, today reported that 53 persons were known to have been killed in the three cities left virtually in ruins. Sixteen hundred persons were suffering from injuries.

Survivors in the cities of Brownsville, San Benito and Harlingen groped their way through water-filled streets in which floated the wreckage of residences and business buildings torn from their foundations by the hurricane.

LOSS IS GREAT

Property damage throughout the storm area, estimated to be 50 miles square, was appalling. Buildings were battered to pieces. Streets were flooded to a depth of six feet. The citrus fruit crop in the fertile valley was virtually destroyed, the loss being estimated at $3,000,000.

Communication lines were still down and flooded streets and roads limited surveys of the storm area damage. Scattered reports told of bodies lying beside the highways.

Rescue parties were attempting to penetrate into the interior communities, but were hindered by flooded roads. Five relief trains neared the hurricane area today bearing medical assistance and much-needed food supplies from Laredo, San Antonio, Kingsville and Corpus Christi.

The injured here were sent to improvised hospitals organized by a staff of surgeons and nurses who arrived from Kingsville.

30 IN BUILDING

The wreckage of one building that collapsed here in the 95-mile-an-hour gale revealed that 30 persons had died within its walls.

Buildings in the business district here were blasted away by the gale. A majority of the residences were unroofed or totally destroyed. Six feet of water stood in the streets, and rescue parties worked through the night with only sputtering candles to guide them.

MCDONALD RESIGNS REFORMATORY POST

CHILLICOTHE, Sept. 6.—Albert McDonald, superintendent of the U. S. Industrial reformatory here, has submitted his resignation, Attorney General Homer Cummings announced at Washington today.

The resignation is effective Oct. 1. McDonald had asked to be relieved at completion of the permanent building program at the reformatory because he felt his training was not along lines to qualify him to superintend the vocational and educational program which the government had undertaken.

Austin H. McCormack, assistant director of prisons, temporarily has been assigned to succeed McDonald.

VERMONT, TOO VOTES REPEAL

State Dry For 75 Years Casts Two to One Margin Against Dry Laws.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 6.—The rolling stone of national wet sentiment swept the prohibition moss of three-quarters of a century from the Green mountains, and today Vermont stood as the 25th consecutive state demanding repeal of the 18th amendment.

Vermont, considered by many as one of the most arid states in the country, rolled up a two to one majority for repeal, electing twelve wet and two dry delegates to the state constitutional convention to be held here Sept. 18.

Voting was extremely light. Final figures from the 248 cities and towns of the state showed for repeal, 41,279, against repeal 20,572.

Vermont became the fifth of the six New England states to join the "big parade" of wet states. Maine holds its election for delegates to a constitutional convention Monday.

Vermont was one of the pioneer prohibition states. For fifty years before 1902 Vermont had a prohibition statute on its law books. In 1914, in changing a local option law, the Green mountain state voted ten to one for prohibition.

However, even in the event of national repeal before the end of the year, it will probably not be until 1935 before Vermonters may purchase, legally, anything stronger than 3.2. A law passed by the last legislature provides new statutes must be enacted before anything stronger can be sold in the state. The next legislature Continued on Page Six

Wrong Number

WASHINGTON—Floyd Bjerstjerne Olson, 42-year-old governor of Minnesota, was entertained at dinner during his recent trip to Washington. Beside him sat a most attractive young matron who said she was a Daughter of the American Revolution.

She and Governor Olson got along splendidly. And the dinner being over at an early hour, she invited Olson and one of his aides to drop in at her house for a chat.

Governor Olson and his aide appeared at the house half an hour later. It was a colonial house in ancient Georgetown. To their surprise they found the windows were dark. Apparently the Daughter of the American Revolution had gone to bed.

Olson held a council of war with his aide. The hour was still early. They thought they had the right address. So they decided to throw pebbles at the lady's window.

Several pebbles. No response.

Finally up went the window. An irate head, adorned with curl papers, appeared.

"What do you want?" the lady demanded in no uncertain tones.

"Gee, Governor, better run," advised Olson's aide. "That Colonial Dame may pack a musket!"

Governor Olson had the wrong address.

Securities Probe

Certain financial and stock selling concerns may soon feel the wrathful hand of the government.

Information has come to the Federal Trade Commission that they are secretly endeavoring to sabotage the enforcement of the new "truth-in-securities" law.

The Commission is investigating these alleged operations with a view to instituting court action.

The hostility of the banks and stock marketing companies to the drastic Securities Act is not new. They opposed its enactment bitterly, but their ire has been intensified in recent weeks because of the large number of violations which are maturing, and which must either be refinanced under the stringent requirements of the Act or go into default.

The law specifies that companies doing refinancing must file with the Trade Commission complete information concerning new issues. Officials of the company are made personally responsible for the veracity of every statement.

Here is one example of the secret subverting of the new Act. A certain New York brokerage firm told a client that he need not bother about observing the law because "when Congress convenes we'll have it thrown out of the window."

The customer promptly reported the incident to the Trade Commission.

Weak Law

President Roosevelt's widely heralded announcement that he had directed the R. F. C. to extend temporary credit to NRA members is a case of where the spirit is willing but the law is weak.

Long before the President issued his declaration, the R. F. C. had been culling its collective brains trying to figure out ways and means of taking a part in the recovery drive. Particularly was this true of Chairman Jesse Jones, who is letting nothing pass him that offers the slightest hope of reviving the waning glory of his organization.

Sanders is opposed to such a session, fearful

Cleveland Oils Win 'Rec' League Title, 15-1

Defeat Walisa's In Hectic Battle

Cleveland Oils, underdogs in the city recreation league, are the 1933 champions. They defeated the Sluggers in a hard encounter Tuesday evening by a 15-1 score.

As soon as the game was ended, Courtwright, manager of the Oils and the man responsible for the city having recreation ball this year, announced that the game was the last regular contest of the year. The lease for the use of the field from the Pennsylvania railroad has expired. Later in the evening Courtwright took down the score-board, removed the bases and planned to take down the fence and back-stop Wednesday.

To say the game was a wild affair is putting it mildly. The Oils started the ball rolling in their half of the first inning. The Oil batting order was given a good shaking up with Watson taking the lead-off berth. He singled and so did Steele. Geib advanced both men with a ground ball but Carter, who took Merriman's place at short when the regular was late, missed a third strike. With two out and two on Mettler coaxed a base on balls from Raymond Smith, sent to the mound by Roy Walisa.

On how many bases should be allowed but the circuit stood. With splendid support especially in the outfield, Purcell went through scoreless inning after scoreless inning. The Sluggers finally pushed a runner over the plate in the seventh. Walisa's team put two men on base in each of the first five innings but in practically every instance a pop fly with Mettler taking most of them was the result of the next batter's efforts.

Eddie Watson, Oil center fielder, committed grand larceny in the fifth inning. With two out Trimmer and Callahan both singled. Emerson Beatty caught hold of one of Purcell's tosses and drove it far into right center field. Watson turned his back to the plate and running towards the automobiles gathered the ball in for one of the finest catches seen this season.

After scoring four runs in the first inning the Oils went scoreless until the sixth when they counted two more. Merriman and Mettler were out when Purcell, Robinson and Parks connected for consecutive hits and with the aid of two errors, one by Brungs and one by Hickey, counted two markers.

NINE IN SEVENTH
Then came the most hectic inning of the season. Darkness was beginning to fall and with the Sluggers getting their last bat Oil batters were ordered to swing at the first good ball. They did with the result that hits peppered all over the lot. Watson drove a ball through Brungs and Steele singled. Geib tripled over Beatty's head in right field and Merriman, Mettler, Purcell and Robinson connected for consecutive hits. The Sluggers had given up the ghost by this time and were tossing the ball around in every direction. Finally, after nine runs had scored, the side was retired.

The Sluggers kept pecking away in the seventh to score their only run. Art Beatty singled and Stevens popped out. Ike Brungs had left the field during the terrible early part of the inning but instead of using a batter in his place the batting order was moved up one notch. Trimmer grounded out but Callahan singled to Merriman scoring Beatty. Heeter took E. Beatty's long fly to end the game and the season's schedule.

FIELDERS STAR
Watson and Purcell each scored three hits for the Oils with Art Beatty getting three for the losers. Boyce Parks played his best game of the year in the field for the Oils and so did Watson and Heeter. Mettler was the busiest man in the Oil infield handling all his numerous chances with ease.

Ab Reid and Max Friedman officiated.

COMMUNISTS ACT IN CUBAN GOVERNMENT

Revolutionary Junta Holds
Its First Meeting This Morning.

SHIPS IN HARBOR

Report Soviet Actively Di-
recting Plans.

HAVANA, Sept. 6.—Cuba's revolutionary junta of youth and radicalism held its first formal session at the presidential palace today, while its rule over the island republic, outwardly appearing complete, had several strange phases shrouded in mystery.

While the leaders of the military revolt boasted complete control of troops throughout Cuba, reliable reports from Camaguey, Santa Clara, and Guantanamo provinces said soldiers there were ignorant of the governmental change in Havana.

In the matter of politics the situation was equally unclear. Rumors persisted that paid Soviet agents had been prominent in the revolt and that they were working feverishly to place Cuba in the hands of Communists.

The position of such noted political leaders, all foes of the recently deposed Gerardo Machado, as Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, Carlos Mendieta, head of the Nationalist party, and former President Mario G. Menocal remained unknown.

QUESTIONS UNANSWERED

The junta, or commission, met early this morning in a session at which Gomez and Mendieta were received together. After a long discussion they left, smiling and apparently in good humor, but absolutely refusing to make any comment. Shrug: greeted all questions regarding their support of the new movement.

In addition the attitude of the United States, perhaps the greatest single factor in importance to the revolt leaders, also remained unstated.

The American destroyer MacFarland lay at anchor in Havana harbor, and the Sturtevant at Santiago. Two other American warships, the cruiser Richmond and the destroyer Bainbridge, were en-

LOCAL GIRL WRITES OF CUBAN TROUBLE

The following interesting article was written by Miss Ethel Jane Steele, Tampa, Fla. attorney, a former Circleville girl and daughter of Mrs. Jennie Steele, S. Court-st.

The name of Roosevelt is mentioned in Cuba today with the reverence that one mentions the name of God. From the lips of every loyal Cuban you hear "Teddy Roosevelt gave us our flag and Franklin Roosevelt saved our constitution." As I write this article there are thousands of people in the streets celebrating the return from exile of hundreds of citizens who were forced to leave the country during the Machado regime. They are carrying banners with these words "Viva Wells, Amigo de Cuba" (Long life Wells, friend of Cuba).

During these days of revolution I have seen sights that I can only hope that some day time will erase from my memory, seeing people shot down on the streets their bodies torn to pieces is a common sight. The hotel where I am staying is located almost across the street from the Capitol Building where the prodo where the streets have been running in blood for more than three weeks. Cuba has been in the throws of a region of terror for three years prior to the revolution. During which time more than a thousand cold blooded murders have been laid at the feet of Machado and his henchmen, over four hundred of these have route to Cuban waters. All were dispatched by Washington "to protect American lives and property," but the question uppermost in the minds of most Cubans was that of American intervention. Fear of this, bitterly opposed by Cubans of all factions, was regarded as highly responsible for the unusual order which prevailed throughout the revolution and into the early hours of its rule.

REPORT DISORDER

Despite this fear of intervention, however, there were frequent reports of minor disorders. It was reported one soldier was killed and two others wounded near downtown Havana early this morning by unknown persons who fired a machine-gun volley from a speeding automobile. Similar reports came from the suburbs and nearby provinces.

Making highways 40 feet wide won't effect much change except that the width of trucks will be 35 feet.

BEGAN WITH STRIKE

It was on the 5th of this month when the first Omnibus drivers went on a strike. Little did the people know how long this had been planned or how far reaching it would be. But hour by hour other industries joined the strike, until within five days the whole island had joined what was the world's greatest strike. From the highest industry to the housewife of the most humble laborer, everything stood still and everyone stopped work. The bakeries, the groceries, the dairymen the ice companies all restaurants and hotels, and things looked dark indeed. The manager of our hotel fortunately had some supplies on hand and he cooked the meals himself for the few people who were in the hotel.

Some six days after all business places had closed word went out that Machado had resigned. One of the most tragic things during that time was the fact that there were no newspapers printed, the mail carriers did not deliver any mail and the telephone employees were in the strike, some few people here have radios and this was the only way in which any information was given out. So the city of Havana ran rampant with rumors, no one knew just what was going on and each person had his own ideas and assumptions, it was impossible to rely upon anything you heard. As soon as the rumor spread that Machado had resigned thousands of people rushed into the streets singing and dancing and when the chief of police ordered them to go home they failed to obey. We heard the siren of the police cars, some ten or fifteen loaded with machine guns, and in front of the hotel they started firing into the crowd of men, women and children. Sixty people were killed outright and more than two hundred wounded. The screams and moans of these people and the streets literally running in human blood presented a picture too gruesome to tell in words. But the man who died that night did not die in vain, for it was this demonstration that dealt the final blow and the army deserted Machado and forced him to flee the country.

CITY STARK MAD

If you can visualize a city with a hundred thousand people gone stark mad you can have some idea of the scenes that followed immediately after the government was overthrown. It is only natural that these people who have suffered for three years and whose sons and fathers have been murdered would start out to seek vengeance upon all who were responsible for their suffering. During the demonstrations I saw as many as ten bodies at a time being carried or kicked through the main streets. It is not an uncommon occurrence yet to hear a noise and look out the window and see at least one body lying in the street. One Cuban, a prominent member of the ABC party told me this morning that they had about nine hundred more to kill and then they would be satisfied. The homes and properties of every member of Machado's Cabinet and all of his prominent supporters have been completely wrecked.

Each time the citizens uncover another crime committed by Machado's secret police riots break out anew. For instance I attended the funeral of the four boys, members of fine families here, whose bodies were discovered in an old forte used as a prison. They had been tortured and then killed. No sooner had their graves been covered than the mobs started out to find the prison keeper and all his guards. They have killed several of them now and the others will be killed unless they escape the country. There is no such thing as a trial or courts of justice here now, the people have taken the law into their own hands.

Naturally there is a lawless element here who are taking advantage of the situation and many people have been killed in the past week and thousands of dollars worth of property destroyed because of personal grievances.

BOOSTED OF ACTS

One day this week I had to go over to the Italian Legation office on business, I picked a nice looking driver who could speak a little English and who was very courteous to drive me over. When we got about two blocks from the hotel he boasted to me that he had killed five men, traitors to the government, and insisted upon taking me past to show me how he did it. I did not dare refuse lest I think I was a friend of Machado's. In spite of the horrible experience I had to smile and tell him what a brave man I thought him to be.

When I reached the office a woman came in screaming and told the Italian Council that her husband had been killed and her home burned. No one in the office paid the slightest attention to her. It seemed so heartless. She told me that she once lived in Boston, Mass., but had been in Cuba about five years. Later I learned that her husband was a member of a secret Italian organization who had executed many of Machado's orders, and that he was accused of killing five people.

One night an American vessel landed and the Captain asked me to come aboard and spend the night with him and his wife. I was happy to get away from the hotel and rowing mobs on the outside and to get some decent food. About twelve o'clock we heard an awful noise outside and about twelve people, some of them prominent in the Macado regime tried to come aboard the boat. The captain refused but just when things looked darkest a cutter came around our boat and picked them up and took them out to the end of the bay where they got a boat for New York the next morning. At they no sooner left the pier than the mob arrived and demanded that we surrender them. This was the only time I was afraid of my life. I did not think they would dare fire on an American vessel, but they were so wild that night that they would have dared do anything. But the captain finally convinced them that he had not seen them and they went away. It is useless to say that we did not sleep any that night.

During these days when life seems to mean nothing and when half of the homes of Havana are draped in mourning I have learned to love the Cuban people. I am a stranger here with no sufficient knowledge of their language to get by, yet they have protected my life with their own, have guarded my every step. When food was scarce and they did not know where or when they would get more, they have divided, their homes and their hearts have been open. And I shall leave Cuba feeling that I am leaving behind many warm friendships, and many friends whom I shall never forget.

LAUDS REPORTERS

Too higher compliment cannot be paid the boys who represent the different newspapers in the States who are here. Life would have been almost unbearable without them. Their good humor and their ability to see the humorous side of any situation helped to make the days a little brighter.

Since leaving Circleville I have had quite a desire to travel in the tropics and to see different islands and their people, but after living through the experiences of the past few days, I am firmly convinced that once I get back to Circleville and my people the largest body of water I ever want to see is the Scioto River and I shall be content to take all my future voyages on a sail boat up the river.

Are frozen foods harmful? I am referring to those frozen in an automatic refrigerator for prolonged periods of time.
Freezing reduces the bacterial decay of foods so that spoilage is eliminated. In defrosting frozen foods it is unwise to allow them to remain exposed to the air until completely thawed. Moisture and such foods should be placed in the frying pan, roaster or broiler before any thawing takes place. Cooking should begin before the juices have disappeared. This prevents softening and preserves the flavor. Fruits to be served hot should be heated quickly without a thawing period.
I have heard of a mixture using vinegar and flour as a good substitute for corn milk. In what proportions are they used?
For 1 C. corn milk use 1 1/2 Tbsp. strong vinegar, 1 1/2 C. flour and 1 C. warm water.
Is the sweetness of granulated sugar, brown sugar and powdered sugar equivalent? Can they be substituted interchangeably?
When using brown sugar in place of granulated sugar, use 1 1/3 C. of brown sugar if 1 C. of granulated is required. Use 1 1/2 C. of confectioners' sugar for 1 C. of granulated.
Does it make any difference at all whether or not cracker crumbs are used in bread crumbs in a baked casserole dish?
Use less cracker crumbs than bread crumbs required in the recipe if you are altering it. Three-quarters of a cup of cracker crumbs will extend a scalloped dish and absorb liquids as much as 1 cup of bread crumbs.
Late Summer Salads
Cool nourishing foods for the lazy days of late summer and plenty of milk in the diet are challenges to your ability. Meet both of those with small time and money cost with the use of cottage cheese. A salad made with cheese and fruit is delicious when frozen.
Frozen Cheese and Fruit
1/4 C. condensed milk 1 Tbsp. sugar
pinapple 2 tsp. lemon juice
1/2 medium banana 1/4 tsp. salt
2 C. mixed fruit 1/2 C. mayonnaise
(peaches, peaches, 1 C. cottage cheese, apricots, cherries)
Prepare fruit by draining juice before measuring. Add lemon, sugar and salt and let stand 30 minutes. Rub cottage cheese through sieve and add with the mayonnaise to fruit. Freeze until firm.
Another salad using cheese is one made with a pineapple ring covered with a thick slice of tomato. Add a topping of cottage cheese to which mayonnaise has been added to taste. Served on crisp lettuce, the combination is delicious. For garnishing, if you choose, a strip of green pepper is attractive.
Cottage Cheese Dressing
Cottage cheese dressing may be used on a crisp section of head lettuce, with a grapefruit salad or chilled cucumber slices. Rub 1 C. cottage cheese through sieve, add 1 tsp. salt, 1/2 tsp. sugar, 2 Tbsp. lemon juice, and mix well. Add 2 Tbsp. salad oil slowly until well blended.

THIS representation of what the world will offer the wheat farmer for his wheat shows clearly the relationship between supply and price. Since 1928, when the world supplies of wheat first became burdensome the price has been low for the most part. The pictures at the top of the chart show that when the supply is low, the world will pay a good price for wheat, but when supplies are too big, the world won't pay as much. As the supplies (shown by the black bars) have climbed, the price (represented by the shaded parts) has sunk lower. The wheat administration seeks to bring the wheat supply of the United States into line with demand by reducing acreage, and thus to make the price nearer parity, that is, the point at which the return from a bushel of wheat will buy as much as it did in the pre-war period, 1909-1914. The 1933 crop year is not far enough advanced to show definitely what prices will be.

GOLD HAS BIG ROLE IN AFFAIRS OF MAN

Used as Money It Sways Destinies of Nations.

Washington.—The intricate part that gold has played in the affairs of civilization, and something of the romance that clings to the yellow metal, are disclosed by Frederick Simpich in a communication to the National Geographic society.

"When gold was used merely as a personal adornment, in plate, or in the decorative arts," he writes, "it swayed the destinies only of those who possessed it, as in Peru and Mexico, or when Rome paid chariot loads of it to the barbarians to save herself from being sacked. But when gold came into wide use as money, to measure wages, prices, and the cost of living in all nations, then it began to influence the whole world. Tariffs, the gold standard, foreign exchange and debts, arbitrage—gold brings them all into the picture of international relations.

night. As he neared the yard limit, he said, he saw the signals set against him and pulled the train to a stop at Flagman R. C. Morris, of Hornell, ran back and placed warning torpedoes on the track.

Railroad men also said stopping of the limited should have set in action a warning signal light of the automatic signal system further west, the direction from which the milk train came.

SIGNALS UNOBSERVED

M. H. King, of Elmira, engineer of the milk train, said he did not see the warning signal nor hear the torpedoes and other members of the train crew, including Conductor D. A. Shea, of Hornell, also stated they had not seen the signals.

The limited had been standing only about a minute when the milk train plowed into it.

Ambulance workers swiftly taking the injured to local hospitals. Firemen, police and National guardsmen, working frantically with axes, crowbars and saws, liberated scores of passengers jammed in the rear coaches and blocked by wreckage of the wooden car. The injured were hurried to a baggage car at the head of the train where doctors and nurses set up an improvised hospital to render aid.

As soon as the bodies of the dead and injured had been removed, wrecking crews began the task of clearing the main line, on which the passenger train had been traveling. Both the wrecking crews and rescue parties were hampered by thousands of spectators who raced to the scene, just outside the city limits, and by passengers who were unharmed but who refused to leave the site rather than remain uncertain of the fate of friends or relatives.

Both local and railroad officials early today set in motion machinery for a complete investigation of the wreck.

District Attorney Frank L. Wooster said he would decide on a course of action as soon as he gets a report from Coroner Frank J. Hitchcock, Sheriff C. W. Kress and local police. Officials of the railroad said an investigation would be ordered at once.

Twelve of the 15 dead were killed instantly, doctors said, when the wooden car was telescoped, and the others died on the way to hospitals. In the wreckage, the body of a child about 3 was found wedged between two older persons. One woman was hurled nearly 50 feet from the tracks and a man was decapitated when the steel coach crashed the wooden car.

The wooden car was three cars behind the engine of the limited and behind it was a steel coach and two sleeping cars.

Most of those killed and the seriously injured were from Susquehanna, Pa., where the wooden coach was to have been detached. Several of them were commuters, local officials of the railroad said, while others were believed to be returning from Chicago as were a number of passengers from New York City and nearby points who had been on a Labor Day excursion to the Century of Progress exposition.

gate on the committee to draw up the code and pledged him to work for a code which will be fair to the producer and distributor. One farmer pointed out that although the price of milk was raised from seven to nine cents per quart last Friday, the distributor has failed to raise the producer's profit. "We don't want the distributor to have all the profit," one producer asserted.

The producers expect to have a meeting of their own after the code has been completed. Provision of the code will be discussed and probably rejected if not satisfactory to them. When local dairymen are unable to agree on a voluntary code within a specified time the state milk commission has the power to formulate the code.

Members of the local committee will meet soon to draw up the code after which it will be presented to a meeting of distributors and producers for approval.

Mr. Walters said he expected to have another meeting next week and have a member of the Columbus code committee speak.
